

One should not regret the past.
One should not worry about the future.
Wise people act by the present time.
- A popular Sanskrit quote

We all live with the baggage of the past...

- It was so close - How did I miss that opportunity?
- I knew it - but why didn't I ace that question?

We also harbor plenty of worries for our future...

- Will my investment lose its market value within the next ten years?
- Will something go wrong during my overseas trip?

Unfortunately, all of us have only twenty-four hours to count every time. Earth spins once on its axis. Fill many of these hours with negativity... you're just wasting those priceless hours down the drain. Is it a sin to think about the past and the future then? Not really. Think about the past... not for regretting your mistakes, but to learn from them! Think about your future... not for foreseeing bad things, but to protect yourself from any known risks!

Most importantly, spend significant time to live in the present. That's what wise people do! Laugh out loud... Go for a walk with your spouse... Enjoy the wonders of the nature... Complete that backyard cleanup you have been procrastinating... Have a friendly chat with your kids... Make a surprise visit to your elders... Cook a new recipe... Make a small donation to a charity... Read a book... Catch an old classic... Listen to soothing music... Call up a long lost friend... Yes, there are many things that you could do for the current moment to make it more productive and useful. Live your life!
