Silky way...

Silk Pure Silk or Natural Silk is produced by silk worms after they eat mulberry leaves.

Artificial Silk is manufactured from synthetic fibres.

Pure Silk sarees are pricier than Artificial ones, however, carry their own pride!

Amrutha Silk Sarees coming soon...

In addition to Aaraadhana and Rangaavali collections, Vastharaa Silk will bring you the Amrutha range of Silk Sarees in May 2013! Watch this space!

Now, you can pay by credit card (Visa and Master) during checkout (in addition to Paypal & Western Union)!

Zari Pure zari is an even silk thread twisted over a silver wire and dipped in gold. This appears as brocade in sarees.

Tested zari has more of a copper mixed with lesser amounts of gold and silver.

Sarees with pure zari are quite expensive than Tested zari sarees.

Nilá and her dreams!

Have you heard of Nilá? Nilá's dreams are many – caring for family, health, currency and taste buds; bringing up toddlers; ensure her grown-ups mingle locally still keeping their Indian roots. As she grows mature, her dreams turn into reality!

Nilá has another special dream – Sarees and Salwars! Nilá makes that dream come true during her yearly or biennial visits to India. In those madly busy few weeks, she gleefully gets on the bandwagon with her mom, siblings and that special aunt to locate some master pieces for special occasions like wedding and festivals. She goes back to her resident country and starts dreaming sarees until her next visit. Do you want to tell her about Vastharaa Silk to cut short that waiting time?

Who's this Nilá, you think. Why can't this be you, we ask! NILA means Nice Indian Lady Abroad!
