trust. noun.

firm belief in the reliability, truth of someone or something.

It is human nature is to choose the best from a pile. You want to pick just a couple of good ones from a tray of apples. Clothing is no different. In fact, getting the right outfit is the toughest of all choices! In India, it is a great tradition to visit a garments mega-store, sight all possible designs and colors (isn't something the next person is holding always attractive?), feel the fabric, try them on and pick your right outfit. Satisfaction guaranteed!

In this Facebook world, with close to 30 million expats from Indian sub-continent living overseas, our choice has obviously shifted from a traditional garments store to online shopping. Trusting the right website is, of course, the biggest single task! Maybe, it was a subjective choice that had the website ticking for you. Maybe, not... You probably checked few things out.

- I have a reasonable product choice
- I am pleased with the product quality
- I am paying the right price
- I am using a professional-looking website
- I get honest and friendly customer service
- I have secure options to pay
- My contact details are not up for sale
- I can include stitching options if I wish
- My wait-time for the product is reasonable

Satisfaction guaranteed!
